Three Brahms	Duets

Die Meere (The two seas). . Johannes Brahms (1833-1897)

Jessica Gilder, soprano; Judith Dunlore, alto

All the winds are hushed upon the slumbering deep; In the coolness of night the weary repose in sleep. All around is quiet upon the infinite sea; Oh my heart, wilt thou from sorrow never be free?

Die Boten der Liebe (The messages of love)

Jill Anderson, soprano; Ana-Maria Raposo-Silva, alto

I welcome your messages, envoys of love, Bearing me tidings from my beloved far away. How beautiful are the breezes that greet me at morning, Wafting me kisses from my beloved over the cool water. My heart's golden beloved, how dearly I love you!

Guter Rat (Good advice)

Candace Mabee, soprano; Judith Dunlore, alto

Oh mother, dear mother, give me some good advice! Every morning a nimble horseman rides after me. Ah, daughter, my dear daughter, I'll give you this advice: Let the horseman ride on and stay another year with me. Ah mother, give me a hundred thalers so that I can buy some clothes. Ah daughter, your father lost everything playing dice and cards. If father lost everything, then I'm sorry that I'm his daughter! If only I were a boy, I could beat the drum and earn money from the Kaiser!
